There are certain accessory characteristics which must have their due importance as likewise forming a prominent feature in the type of the Ox which is intended for the butcher. It must have slenderly-made bones, a fine head, skin supple and not too thick, moderate dewlap, thin and downy hair, calm visage, quiet and mild look. It may be regarded as a certainty that the Ox which combines these and the former attributes possesses a special fitness for becoming good beef. Next to meat, milk is the most valuable product which this race furnishes us--a source of wealth to the producers, for it is an article of universal consumption. Thus it may be easily understood how important it is for the buyer to be able to distinguish, in the market, from certain outward signs, what are the milking qualities of a Cow, and to be able to arrive at a correct conclusion, even in a Heifer, whether she will be a good or bad milker. In spite, therefore, of certain preconceived opinions, the discovery of Francois Guenon, a farmer of Gironde, should be welcomed: it asserted the possibility of determining at once, from a mere examination of the Cow, both the quantity and...
